Dr. John J. Kopchick Research Award

The MD Anderson UTHealth Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences is requesting applications for the first Dr. John J. Kopchick Research Award. This award, which will be made to a GSBS student and their GSBS advisor, will support up to $50,000 of research expenses over a one-year period (see below for budget restrictions). Awards are intended to provide pilot funding for innovative research projects in any area of biomedical science. All MS, PhD and MD/PhD students in good academic standing are eligible.

Review Criteria:

1. Quality of the research plan and its potential impact on the field of study
2. Potential of the project for enhancing the training of the participating GSBS student
3. Academic excellence of the student and faculty advisor

Application - The application should be prepared together by the student and faculty advisor. It should include the following components (all 11 point Arial, 0.5" margins or larger):

1. Application Cover page
2. A research proposal, not to exceed six pages (excluding bibliography): The proposal should describe the hypothesis, specific aims, background, significance and experimental strategy of the project.
3. A one page Training Plan for the student, written by the advisor should be provided. In it describe unique aspects of the training that are tailored to meet the student's needs and career goals. Also indicate how the proposed research project will impact the student's training.
4. NIH Biographical Sketches for both the student and the faculty advisor. On the student's biosketch only, it is acceptable to list publications that are currently in submission.
5. A one-page budget for the project. Please note that funds provided by this award may not be used for capital expenses, administrative salaries, overhead, support staff, equipment, faculty salaries, student stipends or grant writers. Funds must be expensed at either UTHealth or MD Anderson within one year of the time of award and all expenditures must be made in compliance with institutional policies and procedures.

Deadline for submission of all materials: June 25th, 2018 at 5 PM

Applications will be reviewed by the GSBS Student Scholarship Committee who will recommend winners to the Deans.

All items should be assembled into a single PDF file and submitted to Joy Lademora (joy.lademora@uth.tmc.edu). Please include Kopchick Research Award followed by the student's last name in the subject line of the email.
